Fishbone Sideboard Black

A herringbone pattern that earns the Fishbone its name. Reclaimed wood doors carry the graphic grain across the front of a mango wood cabinet, its darkened black finish giving the rustic character a modern edge. A pewter-finished iron frame keeps the stance sturdy and precise, and four cabinet doors open to two adjustable interior shelves that shift to fit whatever needs storing. Storage that wears its craft right on the front.

- Graphic Storage Moment: Black casework and a bold fishbone door pattern add structure to dining rooms, offices, and entryways without feeling heavy.
- Grain Meets Iron: A mango wood cabinet and reclaimed wood doors bring rustic, storied grain, while pewter-finished iron legs keep everything steady underfoot.
- Steady, Clean Lines: A crisp rectangular frame and raised iron base keep the silhouette feeling precise, with doors that sit flush when closed.
- Adjust-As-You-Go Shelving: Two interior shelves adjust to fit serving ware, bar essentials, or workday files, keeping everything easy to find.
