

Heath Bench Black And Beige Weave

A heritage weave on an industrial-modern frame—texture meets backbone. Black and beige woven upholstery gives the Heath bench softer texture and a lighter palette, while a blackened bronze forged iron frame keeps the silhouette anchored and architectural. Foam and fiber fill over a plywood support frame makes for a firm, supportive seat, with length enough to seat two. Set it in an entryway, bedroom, or living room—it holds the line.

- Industrial-Modern Stance: A low, linear silhouette brings architectural presence to an entryway, the foot of a bed, or the edge of a living room.
- Heritage Weave: Black and beige woven polyester brings softer texture and a lighter, layered palette that warms the bench's grounded, architectural iron frame.
- Anchored In Iron: A blackened bronze forged iron frame gives the seat a stable, architectural foundation that carries real visual weight and stands up to everyday use.
- Room For Two: Foam and fiber fill over a plywood support frame keeps the seat firm and supportive, with generous length to hold two.
