

Misaki Sideboard Black

Chiseled like the cliffs of Okinawa — right down to the doors. Contemporary in feel, this sideboard draws its chiseled door shapes from the cliffs of Zanpa Misaki, an Okinawan cape after which the collection takes its name. Solid oak legs anchor the case, and a black carbon finish deepens the oak grain — with two interior shelves keeping storage neat inside. Cliffs on the outside, storage on the inside.

- Shaped Like Cliffs: The chiseled doors take their organic shape from the cliffs of Zanpa Misaki, giving the sideboard a sculptural front rooted in Okinawan landscape.
- Solid Oak, Black Carbon: Solid oak legs and oak veneer carry a black carbon finish that deepens the grain, letting the wood's tone and character stay visible throughout.
- Natural Wood Character: Each piece carries its own grain, tone, and knots, so no two sideboards share the same character — the wood's variation is part of the design.
- Neat Storage Inside: Two interior shelves organize what's inside, keeping everyday items tidy behind the chiseled doors and out of sight until you need them.
