

Daifuku Large Dining Table Walnut Stained Ash

The table that looks soft—without pretending it is. Daifuku is named after a Japanese mochi associated with good luck, and the design borrows that gentle spirit through big, confident roundovers. Those curves take solid wood and make it feel welcoming, not rigid, while the modern silhouette keeps everything clean and composed. Crafted from solid white ash with a walnut stain, it's warmth, comfort, and good design—served daily.

- Mochi-Soft Lines: Generous roundovers create an illusion of softness, giving the table a welcoming presence while keeping the overall look modern and clean.
- Walnut-Stained Ash: Crafted from solid white ash with a walnut stain, bringing a deeper, warmer tone while still letting the natural grain show through.
- Careful Shaping: Smooth edges and clean connections highlight considered craftsmanship, balancing a substantial feel with an easy, approachable presence.
- Gathering-Ready Top: A rectangular surface that suits everyday meals and hosting alike, with a calm profile that works across dining spaces and styles.
